HER STORY

Evelyn Rose Hartley was born May 6, 1945, and spent forty-two years as a nurse, most of them on the night shift, where she said the real talking happened.

She was the kind of grandmother who kept a drawer of birthday cards ready and never missed one. Her roses won ribbons; her pies did not last long enough to be judged. She leaves two daughters, Laura and Julia, six grandchildren, and a neighborhood that will miss her porch light.

*Her children arise up, and call her blessed;
her husband also, and he praiseth her.
Many daughters have done virtuously,
but thou excellest them all.*
